

PAYE goes to the movies

With dimmed lights, popcorn in hand and a relaxed atmosphere, the South African Revenue Service (SARS) brought a new experience to thousands of payroll administrators, employers and tax practitioners ... PAYE at the movies. From a studio in Johannesburg SARS broadcast the PAYE workshop simultaneously to 38 cinemas countrywide where about 6 000 stakeholders could watch and interact via SMS. The workshop was also broadcast on Summit TV and via webstream on the SARS website. This edition carries the main points to emerge from the workshop, including answers to the questions you sent to us.

Tax Season for Employers

Following discussion with several stakeholders SARS has decided not to implement all the changes planned for Employer Tax Season 2011. More...

SARS Commissioner thanks employers

SARS Commissioner Mr Oupa Magashula has thanked employers and PAYE stakeholders, calling on them to strengthen the partnership with SARS to build an equitable tax system that could contribute to growing the South African economy. More...

The PAYE modernisation journey

SARS wants to make it easy for taxpayers to comply with their obligations and more difficult for others who are trying to avoid their tax obligations, SARS Chief Operations Officer Barry Hore told the PAYE workshops. More...

Administrative Penalties for employers

As from Friday 3 June 2011 SARS will introduce Administrative Penalties for those employers who fail to fully comply with their tax obligations. More...

Employer Payments to SARS

Employers are reminded of the new payment rules in respect of payments submitted to SARS. More...

In this issue

- Tax Season for Employers
- SARS Commissioner thanks employers
- The PAYE modernisation journey
- Administrative Penalties for employers
- Employer Payments to SARS
- SARS replies to your questions
- We value your suggestions